Do You Need Hired Help?

"Ready and raring" is the word from Hal Smith, president of the Appomattox Jr. FFA Chapter, concerning their FFA work program. "We want to earn our own money and want to do it by helping people with those odd jobs that hit every spring", says Hal. "You name it and we'll do it (at least we'll try)!!

If you are interested in hiring one or more of these young men call D. W. Torrence (352-2551, office) or 352-6791, home). Students hired after school or on Saturdays can be picked up behind the Intermediate School Agricultural Shop.

Cost for labor is $1.00 per hour.

man Conner read from the town code regulations regarding livestock, fowl and other animals. According to the code, hogs are prohibited within town limits, but no other animals are listed as being prohibited.

Town manager C. S. Booth said that the county sanitarian had inspected facilities for the care of both ponies and horses in the town and requested that the committee on Health meet to discuss the matter further.

Council members expressed appreciation for the cooperation by residents during "Clean-Up Week" and their continued efforts to beautify the area.

On motion of Mrs. Calvin Robinson the Council approved the setting of a date for a public hearing to make certain changes in the Appomattox County-Town Subdivision Ordinance. The proposed changes concern the definition of a subdivision.

Town manager Booth announced that two building permits had been issued – one to T. E. Pittman for a residence on Morton Lane and another to Miss Bessie Marshall and her sister, Mrs. Annie Laurie Sears for a residence on Ethel Street.

Pastor Speaks

A Bundle of Dynamite

"For the Word of God is quick and powerful . . ." Heb. 4:12.

The word "quick" literally means "operative" or "alive". Yes, the Bible is a living force. For it is bound up inseparably with the power of our Lord's blood, (Leviticus 17:11) and the energy of the Holy Spirit (John 6:63).

One cannot come under the hearing of the scriptures without being influenced by them. One is unavoidably swayed by the impact of the Bible. The saved individual is driven close to this Saviour's breast, while the unsaved man reaps a greater condemnation. For in hearing and rejecting its message he is thrust another step down the ladder of doom toward the eternal pit of hell. Like touching an electric wire, the Bible, "The Word of God" either illuminates on incinerates!

A man was once seen sitting on a pile of planks near an important building in Rome and two police officers as they passed by, noticed a suspicious looking bundle on the pavement next to him. Even wary of itinerants they stopped and asked what it contained. They were shocked when the man smiled and replied, "Why officers, that's dynamite!" The officers jumped. One of them hurriedly took charge of the package and the other handcuffed the owner. Both were taken to Headquarters. When the bundle was opened it was found to contain BIBLES! "Where is the dynamite?" Inquired the officer. "That's it", replied the Christian. "The Word of God is quick and powerful". See that these men did not understand, he explained to them that the word "dynamic" is the exact Greek expression that Paul uses for powerful' and the one also stems from our word "dynamite'. This was a radical approach to witnessing for Christ. But we must agree the man got his point across.

Don't play around with the Bible by piddling with other translations, it's "dynamite." To contact it is to set it off. It will either shake you loose from your sins or forever separate you from God.

"Redemption Bood or Judgment Book",
Which shall it prove to thee,
When thou must meet Truth's searching look
When dawns eternity?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

AN OUTSIDE AGITATOR

Lesson for April 25, 1971

Background Scripture: Amos 1; 2:4; through 3:15; 6:8, 8:4-7
Devotional Reading: Ezekiel 18: 19-29

We've been asking, "Who's a prophet?" and one of the answers that we might give is: someone who appears to be an outside agitators, if Amos is any example.

We need to remember that in his day there were two Hebrew nations, not just one. The twelve tribes had been joined together briefly under David and Solomon, but after the latter's death, the kingdom split into two hostile nations, Israel in the North and Judah in the South. Although the people of these two nations had much in common, they also differed in many ways. They were constantly acting like two brothers who might stick together when threatened by others, but quarrel incessantly at all other times.

O seer, go away!

Amos, thus, was an outsider when he went to Bethel, the religious center of Israel. He was a citizen of Judah, not Israel. Who did he think he was, criticizing Israel when everyone knew there was so much corruption in Judah? Why didn't he stay home and prophesy among his own people and concern himself with their sins?

He was also an outsider in that he was not a professional prophet. He was a layman, a shepherd powerful' and the one also stems and dresser of sycamore trees by trade. Where did he get the authority to presume to speak the Word of God? Who was he to criticize the legitimate religious leaders of Israel? Thus, it isnot surprising that the high priest of Bethel, Amaziah, greets him with: "O seer, go away, flee away to the land of Judah, and eat bread there, and prophesy there" (Amos 7:12).

"When God says 'Go!"

Peter and John, Jesus' disciples, were also regarded as 'outside agitators." Warned to cease preaching Jesus Christ, they had said to the Jerusalem authorities: "Whether it is right in the sight of God to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge; for we cannot but speak of what we have seen and heard." (Acts 4:19). And later when again they were hauled before that same Council: "We must obey God rather than men" (Acts 5:29).

What had been said of Amos was also applicable to Peter and John. They were from Galilee, not Jerusalem or Judea. In fact they were laymen, not recognized as clergymen. These northerners, it seemed to the Jerusalem Council, had come to their city simply for the purpose of stirring up the people and creating a crisis situation.

In his Pulitzer Prize-winning book, GHANDI'S TRUTH (W. W. Norton & Co., 1969), Erick H. Erikson tells us that as the great Indian leader went throughout the vast nation of India, identifying and assisting the causes of the oppressed and victims of injustice, he was often denounced as an "outsider." But it was Ghandi's conviction that "a man who takes it upon himself to redress a local injustice even in a place remote from his own 'home,' if he could only prove welcome as a helper to the victims of that injustice, may consider himself a native there, provided only he is willing to accept the suffering thus invited and to play the game with the fairness dictated by a more inclusive identity." Ghandi did not consider himself an 'outsider,' just as Amos had refused to be turned back by that charge.

Neither had Jesus regarded himself as an 'outsider"–though others did! –or wherever sin, evil, and corruption exist, no man with God's message is really an "outsider"!

Fidelity Style Show

Tellers at Fidelity National Bank, Hillcrest Branch, (above) have joined other staff members of Fidelity throughout the Fidelity system in a spring style show all their own. Beginning this week, employees will be seen in these Navy blue ensembles and in other colors, as well. (Above): Mrs. Lillie Sperry, Mrs. Ethel St. John and Mrs. June Chenault. Each day the tellers will choose a dress plus tunic top in one of three different colors. For bank customers it's bound to be a brighter day with the constantly changing look of the tellers' wardrobes providing variety yet uniformity in dress throughout the Fidelity system.
